SEA GIRL HEROES HOME

All Washington Turned Out to Give Them Greeting.

BRILLIANT STREET SCENES

Pennsylvania Avenue Jammed with People and Bright as Day with Fireworks and Red and Green Lights. Nearly the Whole Force of District Military Turned Out.

The victorious Brigade team were tendered a military and civic ovation last night on their return to Washington. The Times has published from day to day a complete record of their business at Sea Girt, and a list and description of the prizes. It only remained to do the victors honor as they passed in review when The Times set its house ablaze with red fire.

The Brigade team had a fair idea of the enthusiasm their good work at Sea Girt produced at home from the thousands and tens of thousands of citizens who thronged Pennsylvania avenue from Sixth street to the Treasury. Their first glimpse of this immense crowd was at the Sixth street station, which was thronged with eager and expectant citizens of all sizes, sexes and ages. A conspicuous feature of the immense assemblage on the streets was the number of pretty and lively girls who honored and greeted the triumphant march of the boys of the hour at the Avenue.

MEN AND OCCASION MET. Those who came in last night at 8:10 o'clock were Lieut. Ladd, Dr. Scott, Carleton, Cook, Leizer, Stewart, Young, Capt. Farmer and Lieut. Vale, and Maj. Harries, inspector general of the District militia.

The military reception was quite worthy of the honor intended to be done the victors. The special order issued by Adjutant General Mosher provided for an escort by the First and Fifth battalions in full-dress uniform, and an optional battalion, in fatigue uniform, or regulation full-dress. An extremely pleasing circumstance was the large number that responded to the permission to add to the military honors to the returning team.

The line was formed on the north side of Pennsylvania avenue, the right resting on Sixth. The whole escort was under command of Col. C. S. Walton, Adjutant General Mosher. First came the First Battalion, headed by Schroeder's band.

This battalion was in command of Acting Major John Miller. The companies were: A, under Lieuts. Keogh and Williams; B, commanded by Capt. Shreve, Lieut. James Garrett; C, Capt. Ostrand, Lieut. Kettler; D, Lieut. Kettler and Lieut. Bell.

MORE TROOPS IN LINE. The Fifth Battalion came next under command of Major Otto L. Sues; staff officers, Adj. Mock, O. M. Myers, and Surgeon Neely. The following companies were out: A, Capt. Jenkins; B, Capt. Phelps and

James E. Bell.

Second Lieut. Smallwood; D, Capt. England and Second Lieut. Leeman. National Rifles, headed by the Henderson Drum Corps. The officers of the company were Lieuts. J. O. Madden, Garner and Evans.

After the First Battalion came the team in fatigue uniform, campaign hats, field belts, and leggings, in a column. The Second Battalion was under command of Maj. R. A. O'Brien, his staff being

Adj. W. C. Keech, Commissary T. A. Garner, Quartermaster W. T. Ellis.

In the Second Battalion were: Company B of the Second Battalion, under Lieut. Manson and Lieut. G. W. Evans; Company B of the Third Battalion, under Capt. Mattingly and Lieut. Flag; Company C of the Sixth Battalion, under Capt. R. H. Streets, First Lieut. W. M. Garnett, and Second Lieut. F. W. Smith; Co. B, of the Engineer Corps, which furnished nearly all of the brigade team, under First Lieut. Holt, Troop A, Capt. Barbour and Lieut. Pillsbury; Ambulance Corps, Lieut. W. D. Fales; Second Separate Company (bicycle corps), Capt. S. H. Wiggitt, Lieut. Frank B. Libbey; First Separate Battalion, under Maj. F. C. Revels, with the following companies: A, Capt. A. Brooks, Lieut. T. L. Dolson;

F. L. Graham.

B. Capt. P. R. Meredith, Lieut. Piper; C, Capt. F. F. Webster and First Lieut. Hall; D, Capt. J. H. Campbell and Lieut. Johnson; staff officers, Adj. A. K. Brodie, Surg. T. L. Uphaus, Inspector of Rifle Practice L. F. Cardozo, and Quartermaster Judd Malvin.

BRILLIANT SPECTACLE. The march up the street was brilliantly lighted by fireworks. The Times giving the boys a royal, flaming welcome as they passed along amid the cheers of the populace.

After the parade the team marched to the armory at Fifth and L streets, where a complimentary speech was made them by Major Harries, after which they lunched at Dismer's, which concluded the festivities.

Mr. G. E. Cook, of the Engineer Corps, brought home the beautiful Hayes medal and the Inspector's medal, held last year by Capt. Bell, was worn this year by Lieut. Young.

J. M. Stewart.

The brigade team has already received an invitation to visit Atlanta in February.

MRS. TALMAGE'S WILL.

Leaves Her Husband the Money He Made Lecturing. Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 9.—The will of Susan W. Talmage, the wife of the Rev. Dr. Talmage, was admitted to probate to-day, having been filed shortly after Mrs. Talmage's death, on August 15. It bears the date of September 30, 1875. The property is valued at $166,000 and goes to Dr. Talmage.

Dr. Talmage, his friends say, turned over his lecture earnings to his wife, who had them thereafter absolutely at her disposal.

DURRANT NOT A MURDERER

Startling Alibi to Be Presented by the Defense.

Will Show Who the People Are Who Killed the Girls in the Church.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 9.—An evening paper prints a sensational story about the defense which will be offered in the trial of Theodore Durrant for the murder of Blanche Lamont. The statement is accredited to a person connected with the defense.

"The alibi will be strong but the defense has witnesses to show that Durrant not only did not commit the murder but will indicate who did it. There will be more than one implicated in the murder."

"Witnesses will testify that they saw the girl enter the church on the fatal afternoon with a certain man and at that time a second man was in the church. There the defense will rest its inquiry."

"It will not attempt to prove that there parties did commit the murder. The statements as to this are so direct that they will leave no ground for the prosecution to stand on, so far as Durrant is concerned."

BOUND FOR PERU.

Electric Engine to Be Tested 15,000 Feet Above Sea Level. Philadelphia, Sept. 9.—A representative from the Baldwin Locomotive Works, with an expert electrician from the Westinghouse Company, together with Sir Henry Tyler, ex-president of the Grand Trunk Railway, will depart to-morrow for Peru, where, it is said, a test of the possibility and feasibility of the electric locomotive is to be made upon a railroad 15,000 feet above the sea level.

Sir Henry Tyler has been in this city for several days in conference with members of the Baldwin firm, and it was not decided until last night to make the experiment, and to-morrow the party leaves New York for South America.

AFTER SMUGGLERS.

New Foundland Authorities Unearth a Most Daring Band. St. John's, N. F., Sept. 9.—The customs department made one of her important seizures of smuggled goods to-day under circumstances which render certain that they were using the biggest and most daring band of smugglers ever discovered in this country. Unfortunately the Whiteaway government is asserted to be in league with them, and nothing has been done toward prosecuting them.

On the contrary, the latest developments indicate that one of the members of the executive council will defend them, in which event acquittal is practically certain.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 9.—David Martin, of this city, who was one of the leaders in the recent Republican factional fight in this State against Senator Quay, and who, it was reported, would resign from the national Republican committee because of the Quay surroundings, to-day denied that he had contemplated such a step.

Mr. Martin would not discuss the matter further than to utter a denial.

EX-CONSUL AS A VAGRANT

Joseph Kirby, Recently Our Representative at Rio Janeiro.

BEFORE JUDGE KIMBALL

Major Danenbower, of the Fredonia, Was the Complainant, and Said the Prisoner Had Victimized Him Out of a Board Bill—Interesting Story of His Escape and Capture.

Joseph Kirby, who was consul at Rio Janeiro for three years by appointment of President Harrison upon the advice of the late James G. Blaine, appeared at the bar of the police court yesterday on a charge of vagrancy. At the same moment Major Washington Danenbower, of the Fredonia, stepped into the witness stand. Judge Kimball was on the bench.

Mr. Danenbower told a very simple story of the ways of the hotel, but Mr. Kirby said he fully intended to return and pay but his remittances did not come as he had a right to expect, and he got to drinking and squandering his money.

Judge Kimball continued the case for further hearing and the authorities at Rockville, Md., may secure a requisition for Kirby.

Mr. Danenbower said that Kirby came to his house on August 11 last with a paste-board box that looked like it contained clothing or other valuables. He remained nine days without paying anything and then disappeared, owing $26.50.

Kirby had told him when asked about his bill that he had deposited some checks or drafts in the Metropolitan Bank and would have money in a few days. On the day after Kirby left Mr. Danenbower received a card from him saying he would be back in a day or two and settle.

He heard nothing of his guest till he was at Rockville on Saturday. He was at the table of the hotel when he noticed Kirby at dinner at another table near. He went to him and asked about the debt, and then went to the hotel clerk to ask about the man. The clerk said Kirby had been there about two weeks and had not paid his bill.

CHASED BY THE OFFICER. Mr. Danenbower then told his experience and the two started out to get an officer. Meanwhile Kirby got up from the table, mounted a bicycle and rode rapidly down the street. Before Mr. Danenbower could get a warrant Kirby had disappeared. The Rockville officer gave chase and caught Kirby just inside the line.

He brought him to Washington and turned him over to Mounted Policeman Yerton, of the Eighth precinct. Kirby had registered at the Fredonia as H. C. Grigsby and at Rockville as J. G. Kirby. Kirby had stated this morning, said Mr. Danenbower, that H. C. Grigsby was his brother-in-law's name and had admitted that the drafts in the Metropolitan Bank were mythical.

There was no other testimony against Kirby, but Mr. Danenbower said he had a telegram from Rockville this morning stating that he was wanted there and he was employed here in other capacities. He lived several years ago at No. 28 Seventh street northeast, and been here till about 1889, when he went to South America as consul.

After remaining there three years he returned to Mexico, and after a short stay, went to Mexico, where he had business relations, from which he expected to receive money to pay his bills. He offered to show Judge Kimball letters with contracts, substantiating his statement. When asked about places in the vicinity of Rockville and East Capitol streets he showed familiarity with the locality as it was several years ago.

FELL IN WITH FRIENDS. He explained his trip to Rockville by saying that he had gone over to Arlington on his wheel on the day he left here, and fell in with some friends on the way. At Arlington he wrote the most of the time to the register in Gen. Lee's old home.

He had no chance to mail it till he got to Rockville. He intended to return and pay Mr. Danenbower, but he got to drinking. When Mr. Danenbower came to Saturday and assailed him about his bill at the Fredonia he was in company with some ladies, and to escape mortification he got on his wheel and rode away. He started at once for Washington to meet his creditor and make some settlement.

When the warrant was served he had not questioned it, though it was sworn out in Maryland, and would not hold here. He came on with the officer. He said he meant by what he said about drafts in the Metropolitan Bank that he intended to draw through that bank 40 persons who owed him. Judge Kimball consulted with Prosecutor Richardson and said that, as there was only one case where he had remained at a hotel and failed to pay his bill in this jurisdiction, a case of vagrancy could not be made against him. There must be several such cases, so as to show a practice of that kind. Neither, said the judge, was there sufficient evidence of false pretenses. Mr. Danenbower's case would not hold.

Mr. Richardson then called attention to the fact that Kirby was wanted in Maryland and asked that he be held in bonds until papers could be secured for his removal. Mr. Kirby said that he thought the case there was simply that of the warrants worn out at Rockville by Mr. Danenbower.

He said, however, and if he could get a hospital he would be all right. He had nothing to run away from. When asked if he had any friends here he would send for him named Gen. Burdette and Col. Lincoln, but both were with the Grand Army at Louisville.

Judge Kimball in continuing the case told Mr. Kirby to apply at the station where he was detained and they would send him to the hospital.
